JAMES BARCLAY

Blood and Fire

A fantasy Battlestar Galactica from the 'Sergio Leone of the genre' (SFX).

Blood and Fire has a simple, violent and gripping premise: nomadic nations, warring over diminishing resources. Max Halloran is about to be tested: he uncovers a series of game-changing government lies that directly affect him and his squadron. Whatever his next move is, wherever his loyalty ultimately lies, everything is about to change.

James Barclay is the author of the Chronicles of the Raven and Legends of the Raven series, as well as the Elves trilogy. He is also a working actor.

JOHN HORNOR JACOBS

Foreign Devils

Fisk and Shoe return, as the repercussions of their first adventure spread throughout the world, and bring war ever closer.

The world is about to go to war. Fisk and Shoe failed to prevent it – now they are caught up in the aftermath of their unsuccessful rescue mission. Moving in circles they're not used to, surrounded by enemies, they know only one thing – they can still rely on each other. But Fisk has a demon inside him . . .

John Hornor Jacobs is the author of the Bram Stoker Award-shortlisted Southern Gods and a Young Adult series.

ALEX LAMB

Roboteer

A fast-paced, gritty space-opera based on cutting edge science.

Humanity is at war with itself. Those who went into space have altered themselves to survive the harsh conditions in their new colonies. They have become more than human. But they are few, and the religiously-inspired masses of Earth have declared war on their blasphemies. For one small crew of augmented humans, the war is a far-away thing – until a chance encounter with a new Earther weapon proves that the battle is about to come much closer to home.

Alex Lamb splits his time between writing science fiction, software engineering, teaching improvised theatre, running business communication skills workshops and conducting complex systems research.
