EDITORIALS

4 Is there a role for patient-controlled analgesia in the emergency department? Jason E Smith and Mark Rockett look at the place of patient-controlled analgesia, which is more effective than usual care in some groups of emergency patients.

8 Clinical leadership and quality improvement: vital for good health care. Kieran Walsh and Karen Lynas emphasize the need for increasing clinical involvement in leadership to put the power for change where it can best be used.

CLINICAL NEWS

10 Including highlights of the European Hematology Association meeting

SYMPOSIUM ON ANAESTHESIA

14 Tracheostomies for the non-expert 1: indications and techniques In a two-part article, Donoghue, Labaderyan and Burdett provide a guide to the principles of care for staff looking after adult patients with tracheostomies in the hospital. The first part looks at indications and techniques.

19 Inorganic greenhouse gases: the role of anaesthetic agents Chika E Uzoigwe, Luis C Sanchez Franco and Michael D Forrest discuss the role of inorganic greenhouse gases in climate change, with special reference to the effect of anaesthetic agents whose role is significant but not widely appreciated.

24 Anaesthesia for laparoscopic surgery Chifu Ohi, Myhill Mohendron and Noname Sabir provide an overview of anaesthesia for abdominal laparoscopic surgery, emphasizing the significant physiological changes which must arise from patient positioning and the effects of pneumoperitoneum, to support the care of these patients.

REVIEWS

29 Assessment of frailty in the inpatient setting A Illesley and A Clegg look at the importance of identifying frail patients in the inpatient setting and outline their assessment and management.

33 Management of Barrett’s oesophagus Neel Sharma and Khek Yu Hoi highlight the management strategies currently used in the treatment of Barrett’s oesophagus, a condition associated with the development of oesophageal adenocarcinoma.

38 Genetic testing in Marfan syndrome Anne H Child, Jose A Aragón-Martin and Karen Sage discuss the role of genetic testing which is aiding rapid diagnosis of Marfan syndrome as a basis for management of eye, heart and skeletal disease.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING UPDATE

42 Patients’ and health-care professionals’ awareness of cost: a multicentre survey Gisela van Bokx, Bernard H van Duren, Elizabeth Jane van Bokx, Rodney Gilbert, Paul Gilbert and Shaun Appleton discuss the findings of a questionnaire survey that set out to establish the cost awareness among a variety of health-care professionals and patients.

CASE REPORTS

46 A feverish janitor dog with a diagnosis not to be missed Oliver Johnson, David Walker, Tom Cummin

48 Sensory neuropathy as a possible paraneoplastic neurological syndrome linked with pancreatic cancer M Ghadiri-Sani, AJ Larner, RK Menon

50 Acute interstitial nephritis caused by two different proton pump inhibitors Frederick JA Torlot, Duncan J Whitehead

REGULARS

51 Images in medicine

53 Anniversaries

54 Correspondence

57 Book reviews

58 Anaesthetic and critical care dilemma

CORE TRAINING FOR DOCTORS

C2 CLINICAL SKILLS FOR POSTGRADUATE EXAMINATIONS Clinical assessment of patients with thyroid eye disease Efthimia Karra, Ahmed Youssuf, Geoffrey E Rose, Stephanie E Baideweg

C6 WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT Management of patients with thyroid eye disease Efthimia Karra, Ahmed Youssuf, Geoffrey E Rose, Stephanie E Baideweg

C10 TIPS FROM THE SHIP FLOOR Managing blood glucose levels in patients with diabetes and renal impairment Taseen A Chowdhury, Sam O’Toole, M Magid Yaqub

C14 WHAT THEY DON’T TEACH YOU AT MEDICAL SCHOOL Human factor skills in the surgical environment Alistair Geraghty, Craig McPherson

British Journal of Hospital Medicine, January 2016, Vol 77, No 1 3