

The biggest dig in Welsh history

A huge gas pipeline is being built across the breadth of South Wales. The result is the biggest archaeological project in the history of the principality. We report on a project set to transform our understanding of prehistoric Wales.

