

CONTENTS

(Vol XXII, No.8) | November 2011

ON THE COVER The eyes have it. A finely detailed Medusa head discovered during the excavations at Syon Park. The original is only 4cm in diameter.

COVER IMAGE: Museum of London Archaeology

UP FRONT

Letters

4

Your comments, complaints, and compliments.

News

6

Stonehenge's sister?; Ham Hill; Silchester; Harboured legions; Aldborough amphitheatre; England's ancient landscapes; Scottish redware; Priddy Circles bulldozed; Protecting Ireland's recent past; Wedding cheer to a sad burial feast

Calendar

11

Archaeological dates for your diary.

FEATURES

SYON PARK SERVICES

12

Life and death on the Roman roadside

Checking in at Syon Park, where the weary traveller in Roman Britain could find bed and board.

DARTMOOR: INDUSTRIAL LANDSCAPES

20

Mining the Moor

Among Dartmoor's famous prehistoric monuments lie clues to a flourishing Medieval industrial history.

INFANTICIDE IN ROMAN BRITAIN

28

The Yewden Villa babies

Have excavations at a wealthy Roman villa unearthed an ancient murder mystery?

NOTTINGHAM UNDERGROUND

34

How a subterranean city was used through the ages

Laser-scanning has produced stunning new images of underground houses, chapels, drinking dens, and bomb shelters.

REGULARS

Context

42

Reconstructing the Roman fortlet at Castleshaw in the Peak District.

Reviews

45

Burial in Later Anglo-Saxon England c.600-1100 AD; Becoming an Archaeologist; How to Read Industrial Britain

Sherds

46

Chris Catling's irreverent take on heritage issues.

Last Word

48

Andrew Selkirk comes face-to-face with Councillor Alan Melton, and talks 'bunny huggers'.

Odd Socs

50

The Battlefields Trust