CONTENTS

NEWS 4

FEATURES

Farm buildings and perpetual change 6
Many farmsteads were adapted as technology advanced in the 18th–19th centuries, writes Paul Barnwell

Togidubnus and the Roman liberation 8
The historian Tacitus invented the ‘conquest’ of Britain, claims Martin Henig

The lost defensive ditches of wartime 10
Thousands of miles of wartime ditches have been filled in and forgotten, writes William Foot

From Buttermere to the bobbin factory 12
The Lake District was until recently an industrial area. Bob Bewley reports

LETTERS 14

COMMENT

Riding down the road to regional chaos 15
The Government’s new culture proposals ignore the issue of conservation, writes Richard Morris

BOOKS 16

BACK PAGE

Dating a cottage and saving a windmill 18
In the second of two articles, Simon Denison reports on the achievements of voluntary archaeology