Editorial

Editorial Board

Promoting excellence in midwifery and women's health

British Journal of Midwifery

February 2017

Vol 25 Number 2

Editorial
73 Midwives show strength in the face of adversity
Madeleine Murphy

Birthwrite
74 Engaged midwives offer better care
Jacqueline Dunkley-Bent

Comment
76 Caesarean section and evolution
George Winter

Clinical practice
78 Non-pharmacological pain management strategies for labour: Maintaining a physiological outlook
Ruth Alexandra Sanders and Kathryn Lamb

Research
88 Education provision for the newborn physical examination as a post-registration module: National survey
Cathy Rogers, Carole Yearley and Annabel Jay

Where do you want to have your baby? Women's narratives of how they chose their birthplace
Chantal Louise Woog

Relationship between social support and breastfeeding self-efficacy among women in Tabriz, Iran
Fatemeh Faridvand, Mojgan Mirhafourvand, Jamilah Malekoui and Sakineh Mohammad Alizadeh-Charandabi

Clinical
110 Exploring parents' experiences of care in an Irish hospital following second-trimester miscarriage
Sarah Cullen, Barbara Cougian, Brenda Casey, Sheila Power and Mary Brosnan

Service audit
116 Impact of a maternal sepsis training package on maternity staff compliance with Trust guidelines
Sarah Bolgier, Alison Rhodes and Melanie Coward

Education
123 Pre-registration midwifery education: Do learning styles limit or liberate students?
Alison Power and Rob Farmer

Legal
128 A court order does not guarantee that a child will be immunised
Richard Griffith

Classified
132 Advertisers' directory

Midwife blog
134 Rare postpartum complications
Sophie Windsor