WELCOME TO DOG & TRUMPET

- Dog & Trumpet is a long-established nickname for the iconic logo which began life as an original painting by Francis Barraud in 1899 entitled "Dog looking at and listening to a Phonograph".
- The painting was subsequently purchased by The Gramophone Company to advertise its Gramophone players.
- However, Nipper proved so popular that by 1909, the company began featuring the image on its record labels together with the caption "His Master's Voice".
- In this, its latest chapter Nipper joins the online revolution existing across popular social media platforms and music streaming services.
- Dog & Trumpet is passionate about classical music and related genres, primarily in recorded music past and present, but also live performance, topical stories, trivia and more.
- Embracing all good musicians and composers, performance venues and media, record labels and music stores.
- Dog & Trumpet celebrates music with pedigree
