

Super-Human Intelligence

Perhaps our intellectual capacity is limited by the design of our brain. Our brain structure has evolved over millions of years. There is absolutely no reason to presume it cannot evolve further, either through continued biological evolution or as a result of human intervention through engineering. The job our brain does is amazing when we consider that the machinery it is made from is very slow in comparison to the cheap electrical components that make up a modern computer.

