

Contents

Features

60

30

COVER FEATURE Seeds of the people

The pandemic has helped to galvanise a new movement of growers and seed-savers: could it be the start of a fresh era of seed diversity?

50 | Spirit and song in Mauritania

A group of refugee musicians who have been brought together by spirit and circumstance are finding solace in song

60 | Bling without a sting

From diamonds made from thin air to precious metals salvaged from e-waste, the projects that are hammering out a treasure trove of sustainable jewellery

38 | The eco-friendly spirit brand

A company that set out to become the world's most sustainable spirit company has made a tippale that it says actually benefits the planet

48

48 | Coffee with a positive impact

How to ensure your daily caffeine hit doesn't mean the planet takes a hit

68

58 | Relying on renewables

How does the UK reach net zero by 2050? Our best bet is to put our faith in tried and tested renewable energy technology, a report finds

64 | Where in the world?

The What3Words app means that everywhere on Earth has an address

66 | The firms that are giving away a slice of income

A Devon-based insurance company that has given away £1m is just one business diverting revenue to progressive causes

68 | Wooden buildings

It's versatile, light, carbon-capturing and may even make us feel better when we're surrounded by it: timber is making a comeback in construction

Images: orange bangle: Dinosaur Designs